A letter of thanks and appreciation written by Col. William L. Hardick, BUFFALC commander, went out last week to the commanding general at Fort Jay, Governor's Island, New York, in recognition of their thoughtful Christmas present to the 17th Infantry Regiment.

The present, $717, the BUF-FALOES share of a $3993 jackpot won by the 7th Infantry Division and donated by military and civilian personnel of Fort Jay, was turned over to UNCACK, Korea, for the purpose of initiating a Korean "Boys Town" for homeless shoeshine boys found in the hills of Korea.

Colonel Hardick's letter read in part: After due consideration a nearly unanimous vote for donation of the entire sum to a "Boys Town" for orphaned boys was returned. A residue of rather pitiful small boys constantly invade military camps in search of work and food, as shoeshine boys, KP's, etc., relying on the humane side of the American soldier for bandouts.

The soldiers noted this constant influx of homeless tots, and took up voluntary contributions among themselves to set up a Boys Town for the orphaned lads.

In conclusion he added, "In behalf of the men of the BUFFALO Regiment, I wish to thank each and every member of your command who donated for this thoughtful and generous gift. The knowledge that you are thinking of us and are conserned for our welfare has given us all a terrific boost."

One of Harry Truman's closest friends says the former president will write his memoirs for a New York publishing firm. And for this, he is expected to receive more than $500,000.

Security is everybody's business.
